GRENADA

Grenada's ambassador to the Organization of American States claims the Reagan administration is "'plotting to overthrow the revolutionary government"' of that West Indies island.

Ambassador Dessima Williams, speaking at Cornell University in Ithaca, said Monday the plot to overthrow the government -- the "'most serious threat"' to date -- had the support of the CIA.

"'We have information, very concrete information, that the Reagan administration is plotting to overthrow the revolutionary government in Grenada,'" she said.

"'This is not the first time, but this is the most serious threat - with the support of the CIA -- and we want to alert U.S. public opinion about this reality and to call on the American people to be vigilant in restraining the hand of the Reagan administration so that the American people can prevent the kind of historical acts that you will come to regret later.'"

Grenada is the smallest independent nation in the Western Hemisphere.
